In Latin America, populism is shaped by the lack of a democratic process. In contrast, in Europe there is a focus on “Europeanism” and the preservation of culture. Populism subordinates/subjugates personal identity and in turn gender, which is an identity. Voting rights are appropriated as a political tool.

Very few academic studies address gender and left populist parties. Kampwirth's (2010) edited collection on women and Latin American populism shows an ambivalent relationship between feminist movements and left populist leaders. More strikingly, Roth and Baird (2017) consider left populism incompatible with gender equality.
