The Hunger 1 Whitley Strieber

Whitley Strieber, one of my favorite novelists for this reason (his very different view on what is now common topics) is the best at what he does: horror with a more realistic twist. Written before the popular novels of today (came out in 1981), The Hunger is gritty and dark while taking us from ancient times to the present.

The Hunger (Hunger, #1) by Whitley Strieber

Whitley Strieber is widely known for his bestselling account of his own close encounter, Communion: A True Story, and has produced a television special based on Confirmation for NBC. He is also the author of the vampire novels The Hunger, The Last Vampire , and Lilith's Dream , and is the new host of his own radio program, Dreamland , founded by Art and Ramona Bell.

The Hunger is a novel by Whitley Strieber. The plot involves a beautiful and wealthy vampire named Miriam Blaylock who takes human lovers and transforms them into vampire-human hybrids. The novel is unusual in that it deals with the practical considerations of vampirism, such as the difficulty in obtaining victims and concealing frequent murders. The Hunger suggests a science-fiction explanation for vampirism, that vampires are a species that bears a resemblance to humans. They are not immortal

This is the story of what happened with her human loves, the great sorrow of Miriam's immortal life. Strieber gives vampires a whole new way of "life" in "Hunger" that is different and absorbing. I really liked this novel, but unfortunately I found the following 2 novels about this set of vampires very disappointing in some aspects.
