However, I do not find it to be consistent with the Bible after flipping through it briefly. Moreover, the creative license taken in adapting some of the stories to children was a bit off putting for my personal taste. Three examples of what I did not like about this book: 1. The story of creation and original sin are skipped entirely.

Famed Christian writer and academic, J.R.R. Tolkien, once wrote, " The Gospels contain a fairy-story, or a story of a larger kind which embraces all the essence of fairy-stories. They contain many marvels—peculiarly artistic, beautiful, and moving: 'mythical' in their perfect, self-contained significance; and among the marvels is the greatest and most complete conceivable eucatastrophe."
