Abstract: This paper proposes a hierarchical cluster-based multispecies particle-swarm optimization (HCMSPSO) algorithm for fuzzy-system optimization. The objective of this paper is to learn Takagi-Sugeno-Kang (TSK) type fuzzy rules with high accuracy. In the HCMSPSO-designed fuzzy system (FS), each rule defines its own fuzzy sets, which implies that the number of fuzzy sets for each input ...

The Fuzzy Inference System (FIS) are developed using the Mamdani approach. This involves designing and tuning of the membership functions, input/output rules, and the defuzzification technique. Overall, this project aims to show that a fuzzy logic controller is a good alternative to a PID controller, for flow measurement and control applications.

I spent this weekend having a lovely if slightly exhausting time at Leeds' Thought Bubble comics convention. Let me begin by offering huge congratulations to Dave Shelton (pictured above) for winning the inaugural Leeds Graphic Novel Award, at a ceremony held on Friday as part of the comics festival. The award was voted on by the schoolchildren of Leeds, and they voted Dave's Good Dog, Bad Dog ...

Selling my spare Naim phono boards for the NAC 32.5, 72 series pre amps. This is a pair of 323/2 for moving coil cartridges. I also have a pair of 323/4 which is a slightly later issue of the same as above, now becoming rare as they are no longer made by Naim from what I understand.

Asymptotic stability problem of a class of fuzzy cellular neural networks with unbounded distributed delays is studied. New stability criteria are derived by employing a Lyapunov-Krasovskii functional and using LMI approach. Numerical examples are provided to illustrate the effectiveness and less conservativeness of the developed techniques.

This may cause rule uncertainty problems. Consequently, the performance of the controlled system, which is controlled with type-1 fuzzy logic controller, is undesirably affected. In this study, a type-2 fuzzy logic controller is proposed for the control of buck and boost DC-DC converters.

Commenter Waleri Todorov recalled that the global descriptor table (GDT), which is one of the places that selectors are defined, is limited to 1024 selectors. Does that mean that there is a hard limit of 1024 threads? The question was in the context of how Windows NT for the 80386 managed the thread environment block (TEB).
